ULYSSES

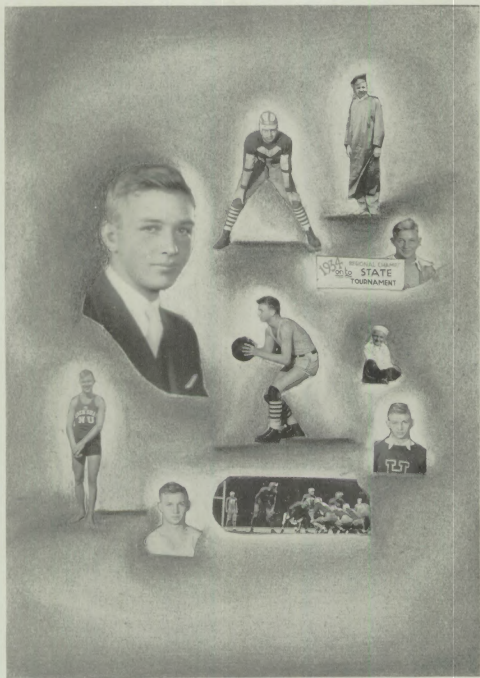

Ulysses, restless, roaming ruler of mythology, symbolizes never ceasing activity, the contemplation of life as an ever widening arch of experience in which knowledge and endeavor are viewed as ends in themselves.

After having traveled for several years, living a life rich in learning and experience, Ulysses returns to his native land where he finds his people reflecting the shallow emotions and unprogressive spirit of his own wife and son. Despite his withered years and the wealth and fame that he has gained, his return to the people over whom he reigns only increases his resolve to spend his remaining years braving unconquered enterprise.

With Ulysses as an inspiration to create in those who now leave this school a realization of the joys of achievement and to stimulate in underclassmen an appreciation for the activities offered at Hammond High, the DUNES of 1935 is dedicated to those who would rather wear out than rust out.

ADMINISTRATION

"I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch where through
Gleams that untraveled world, whose margin fades
Forever and forever when I move.
How dull it is to pause, to make an end,
To rust unburnished, not to shine in use!"

Instructors—Products of Many Schools

East Side—West Side: From schools all over the United States and Iowa our faculty come to us. And each faculty member is willing to pull for his or her school as "the best there is." In fact, the teachers got so enthusiastic on the subject of their Alma Maters, that they completely wrecked this article, which was so full of cheerings and boasts when completed, that it had to be completely revised. This time, it contains merely a list of the faculty and the colleges they attended. The numbers that appear before each name do not indicate sequence, age, or football signals, but the number of years of service given to Hammond High.

Association Executives—Student Administrators

Each year from the ranks of the coming graduating class, three seniors are chosen to head the Hammond High School Association. Last year the officers elected were James Dycus, president; Lucille John, vice-president; and Lucy Jo Brusch, recorder. Jimmy, as president, had charge of the Senate; Johnny, as vice-president, presided over the House of Representatives; Lucy Jo, as recorder, kept the minutes of the Senate meetings.

President Dycus, in turn, appointed his cabinet. It consisted of Tom Cosgrove, Secretary of Student Activities; Arlouse Freyman, Secretary of Public Safety; Marlin Van Stright, Secretary of Discipline; and Catherine Short, Secretary of the Junior Red Cross. Tom had general charge of all school activities and made all auditorium announcements concerning association activities. Arlouse was student supervisor of the monitor system, while Marlin had charge of the student court; Catherine had general charge of all affairs of the Junior Red Cross.

The association officers next year will be Robert Bigelow, president; Basil Lorenz, vice-president; and Betty Betz, recorder.

Both Your Houses—Sources of Student Legislation

The legislative branch of the Hammond High School Association is composed of two departments, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The members of these departments are the stern and wise lawmakers of our government.

The presiding officer of the Senate this year was James Dycus, president of the Association, the sponsor being Mr. Nelson. The Senate was composed of three members from each of the upper classes and two members from each of the lower classes. The senior members were Helen Bieker, Robert Brown, and Gretchen Hopman. The junior members were Bill Belshaw, Mary Grills, and Virginia Good. The sophomore class seated Carolyn Mann, and Hugh Clayton, while the freshman class chose Robert Williams and John Norwood. The minutes of the Senate were kept by Lucy Jo Brusch, recorder of the Association.

The House of Representatives seated fifty-two members, one representative from each advisory. The presiding officer was Lucille John, vice-president of the Association, the sponsor being Miss Hancock. Other officers were Rosemary Mullen, vice-speaker; Kathryn McGrath, secretary, and Marjorie Kinman, Herald reporter. The following committees were appointed: financial, Darrell Wolfe, Ralph Newlin, and Alice Mason; eligibility, Robert Morris, Ted Thomas, and Katherine Bereolos; rules, Quentin Mueller, Betty Elstun, and Marjorie Blocker. There was also a Board of Appeals composed of Mr. Garrett, sponsor, John Keeler, and Eileen Reinert.

Judicial Body—Nemesis to Hall Violators

During the past year the Student Court tried about one hundred cases of students who had been reported by monitors and teachers for violating hall rules. The court, headed by Marlin Van Stright, Secretary of Discipline, met each Tuesday and Thursday. The Tuesday court was composed of Carl Jacobson, senior judge; Charles Hallett, junior judge and Elenore Gillard, freshman judge. Those on the Thursday court were Gladys Minas, senior judge; Robert Bigelow, junior judge and Virginia Fields, sophomore judge.

"Come, my friends,
'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.

Seniors—In Varied Achievements

The illustrious and active Ulysses had nothing on the class of 1935. Even he could not have surpassed this group of sponsors, for this has been one of the most active graduating classes that Hammond High School has known.

The officers of the Hammond High School Association this year were James Dycus, president; Lucille John, vice-president; and Lucy Jo Brusch, recorder. President Dycus in turn appointed an equally capable cabinet, which consisted of Tom Cosgrove, secretary of student activities; Marlin Van Stright, secretary of discipline; Arlouse Freyman, secretary of public safety; and Catherine Short, secretary of the Junior Red Cross.

The senior officers of the class of '35 were Gretchen Hopman, president; Tom Cosgrove, vice-president; Marjorie Blocker, secretary; and Lois Wilson treasurer; Miss Chapman, Miss Dieterich, and Mr. Keeler being sponsors. Officers of the junior year were Tom Cosgrove, president; Betty Elstun, vice-president; Virginia Frank, secretary; and Gretchen Hopman, treasurer.

The members in the senate were Gretchen Hopman, Robert Brown, Audrey Bell, Lucy Jo Brusch, Tom Cosgrove, and Helen Bieker. The student court, our judicial organization, seated Marlin Van Stright, Gladys Minas, Carl Jacobson, Catherine Short, and Audrey Bell.

The "Dunes" was edited this year by Mary Anne Sohl; one of the business managers was Dick Whitney. The "Herald" had as its editor Gladys Minas.

Dramatically, the senior class has also been well represented. The male lead in the fall play, "Three Wise Fools," was taken by William Hubbard. One of the other leading roles was taken by Vernon Pinkerton. Several minor roles also went to members of the graduating class. In the senior play, "Three Cornered Moon," the leads were taken by Ruth Seaman and Carl Jacobson.

Athletically, too, the class of '35 has shone. Our championship sectional basketball team owed much of its success to its six senior members, Gerald Higgins, Eddie Marciniak, Wally Yablonowski, Nick Egnatz, "Speed" Hudson, and Nick Hashu. There were also sixteen senior representatives on the football squad. They were Ray Rupert, John Winterhaler, George and Pete Stillson, Wally Yablonowski, Frank Gursansky, Stan Kryzanowski, Bob Hurt, Eddie Marciniak, John Keeler, Bob Haak, Les Adams, "Babe" Mueller, Eddie Brown, Chuck Krug, and "Shadow" Kraus.

In track, Wally Yablonowski and Charles Bunger were the record setting seniors and in swimming, Carl Jacobson was a star performer.

In the field of wrestling, John Keeler, John Etienne, Bob Haak, and Earl Ziek were individual champions.

The senior girls were also outstanding in athletics. They won the basketball championship title, and took second place in the swimming meet. "Johnny" John was awarded a gold loving cup for being the "most versatile girl." Incidentally, both our cheer leaders, "Johnny" and "Burpp" Britton were "thirty-fivers."

The seniors were represented socially by Peggy Ballard, who won the title of "Miss Hammond High" and by Mary Lee Brown, who was voted Prom Queen. Mary Lee's two attendants, Helen Bieker and Lucille John, were also seniors.

Like Ulysses, the class of 1935 will not be satisfied to stop with present achievements. These seniors will push onward; they will be forever seeking new heights of endeavor.

Senior Will—Savior of School

Pandemonium! Riot! Distress signals flash through the halls and rooms of H. H. S! S. O. S! Save our school! After the class of '35 graduates, what will become of it? It will be doomed to oblivion; it must sink to the depths. H. H. S. will be no more, after the seniors of '35 are gone! But no! To the rescue! Dashing to the aid of their Alma Mammy come these generous, sympathetic seniors. One by one, they offer their contributions toward the upholding of their school and the classes and students to come.

First to drop his suggestion in the offertory box is  brawny football hero. It reads as follows: "Well, I'll leave my gal friend Mary, to the school in general. I know if I left her to anyone in particular everybody else would be mad. So-o-o—" Then  "My domestic nature and love of home life I hereby donate to Alice Schrieber. May she profit by these which I so generously give to her." Then comes Bob Haak, marvel of the ages,—: "I'll give about 160 pounds of my avoirdupois to Bill Gostlin. Chuckle, Chuckle. I'll be a shadow." Who should come tripping up next but with: "I'll leave my hair ribbons to that dignified dame, Durham, but can she take it"? Then come  and  who dropped in the box the following offer: "We hereby donate our positions as cheer leaders to anybody who deserves them. We realize that they can never be as good as we were, of course, but a school must have cheer leaders. We should like to suggest Mildred Schmueser, Roberta McEwen, and Chuck Tuttle." Then  "I'll leave my nickname 'stinky,' to Marjorie Sohl, and boy, will I be glad to get rid of it!" Then up saunters  and . They offer the following: "We, Ma and Pa Twitchbottom, leave our loving home life, and our affection for each other to Helen Osler and Frank Stoikowitz. We're getting a divorce."

Those generous seniors are still rushing up, eager to donate something for the good of the school.

 that "gojus gal" is next: "I'll leave the story of my beauty to live through the coming generations of H. H. S. students." Then up strides  to say that she "didn't offer to give anything because she "coun't." Next come  with the following touching statement: "I'll leave my 'haid' in which I am slightly 'teched' to that demon brain, Bud Eder." Then comes Ernie Kitts to drop the following in the basket: "To Anne Hopman, I leave my bottle of peroxide." And following her,  who offers: "I leave my sylph-like figure to Florence Cobb." Faster and faster they come. Next is Gerry Lawson with: "I donate my intelligent expression to Mary Jean, the great Crumpacker." Then with: "I'll leave the reputation of our swimming team in the hands of Meyn and Thomas.

Do your stuff, boys!" Then  who offers: "To Elizabeth Sigler, I'll leave my unrequited love affair." In the next group comes  who hands in the following: "I'll offer my accidents to Ann Duncan, if she wants 'em. Next is  with: "I hereby donate my title of Miss Hammond to Jeanette Klitzke." Then comes the great Kraus, (Leonard to you) to offer: "I'll leave my 'Shadow' to m' pal, another great Krause, Jack, the Giant." After a short breathing space, up struts  to drop in the basket the following: "I'll leave my puny puns to Jack Hemstock. His sense of humor is so lacking." Then come  and  to offer jointly: "We would like to leave our athletic ability to the coming senior class in general. And we are not being sarcastic." In the next bunch comes  who offers: "I will will my active school career to that Oltz brat, Artie." And then

What-a-Man  with: "Well, I'll leave my women to that potential power-house Vic Jens. Oh, you cute kiddo!" And close on his heels is  who drops this in the basket: "I'll leave my twinkling, flirting eyes to Ruth Luring." Time out to fetch another basket. This time we catch  who offers: "I'll leave my beard to Pretty Boy Levens. It's about time I started to shave anyway."

And then  who geeves: "You can't have my . So there!" and then  "I'll leave my sparkling wit (half) and humor to that droop, Batty Batz. H're ya, Toots?" Close on the red-head's heels, of course, comes Speed Hudson, who offers: "I'll leave my speed to posterity. How ya doin', Posterity?"

Next up come  and John Ettiene, with: "We hereby will our muscle-bound statures to Bob Ganshaw and Jim Erdmann." And then  who offers: "I hereby will my dead-head herring to Cosby Bernard, who ain't so dumb as he looks." And on the Babe's heels is  who gives: "Tee hee, I'll be lavin' me Irish background to Alphonse Janeczko. Step up for the shamrock, Alphonse."

Next to dash up are those ducky Stillson Brothers, who offer: "We'll leave our charming personalities and our handsome appearances to Belshaw and Bigelow." And then comes Wally Yablonowski with: "I'll offer my athletic career to Geraldine Higgins—for a keepsake." Then up rushes  to give the following contribution: "My 'hoodwa I leave in the capable hands of Virginia Good." And next is  who gives: "I'd like to keep my hero (Jack to you) if nobody minds. I've just gotten him broken in." Leading the next bunch is  who offers: "I'll leave my memory to the Herald

Staff in general, to inspire them in future work." And then come  and  with: "We leave our artistic ability to Glen McKay and Basil Lorenz." And then  who gives the following:

"I'll will my flock of dates (not the tree kind) to Jane Chapman." Up dash the last group, led by who hands in: "I've always had bats in my belfry. Now I'm gonna will 'em to Paul Kiefer."

Then comes  who offers: "I gladly leave my grace and rhythm to Marge Turner." And next is  with: "Well, I'll leave my bucket and my Ballyhoo to Louise Auch. Won't she make a ducky water boy?" And last but not least is  who sadly deposits his crown in the basket for his successor, Bob Bigelow. After all the contributions had been taken, we found lying in the basket, a long, shiny baton—which we finally decided had been Drum Major  offering.

Now, no longer does riot reign in the halls of H. H. S. for because of the generosity and impetuosity of these graduating students, the school has been saved for future classes. They have Saved Our School.

OTHER CLASSES

"This is my son, mine own Telemachus,
To whom I leave the scepter and the isle—
Well-loved of me, discerning to fulfill
This labor, by slow prudence to make mild
A rugged people, and through soft degrees
Subdue them to the useful and the good."

Juniors—Composite Ulysses

Functioning as an efficient composite Ulysses, the Junior Class, sponsored by Miss Allman, Mr. Beyer, and Mr. Crews, was outstanding both for individual and class achievements. Governing it were its officers: James Erdman, Jack Krause, Billy Belshaw, and Evelyn Voss, president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary respectively. Senators and representatives, Bob Bigelow, Billy Belshaw, Virginia Good and Mary Grills, wrote its laws and administered them.

Expressing its thoughts were journalists Bob Meyer, Jane Chapman, Jim Erdman, and Jack Hemstock, the latter winning the Herald prize for the best original Xmas short story. Virginia Good and Kenneth Means were chosen to lead in summing up pictorially in the Dunes the activities of the class next year. Cosby Bernard headed the committee responsible for the Prom, the outstanding social event of the year. Two juniors had the feminine leads in the fall plays of 1933 and 1934, Ruth Groman having the lead in "Adam and Eve" and Eleanor Ibach in "Three Wise Fools." Two of the three wise fools were Kenneth Means and Bill Belshaw. Juniors fighting for basketball victories were Basil Lorenz, Jack Krause, and Bob Bigelow. State champions of the class were backstroke Walter Mcyn, breaststroker Ted Thomas, and track stars Glen McCay and George Papuga. Of the girls Betty Betz led the field, winning the Chicago Tribune Aquatic cup and swimming for the Chicago I.A.C. Louise Auch and Geraldine Croak were recognized for their swimming and diving performances on the girls' pool team. The wide acclaim of the Junior Class can be attributed to the rapid oral work of its publicity agent, Harold Baker.

May this Ulysses restlessly stride on to greater achievements and inspiration next year.

Southwest Eaves—Study in Leaves

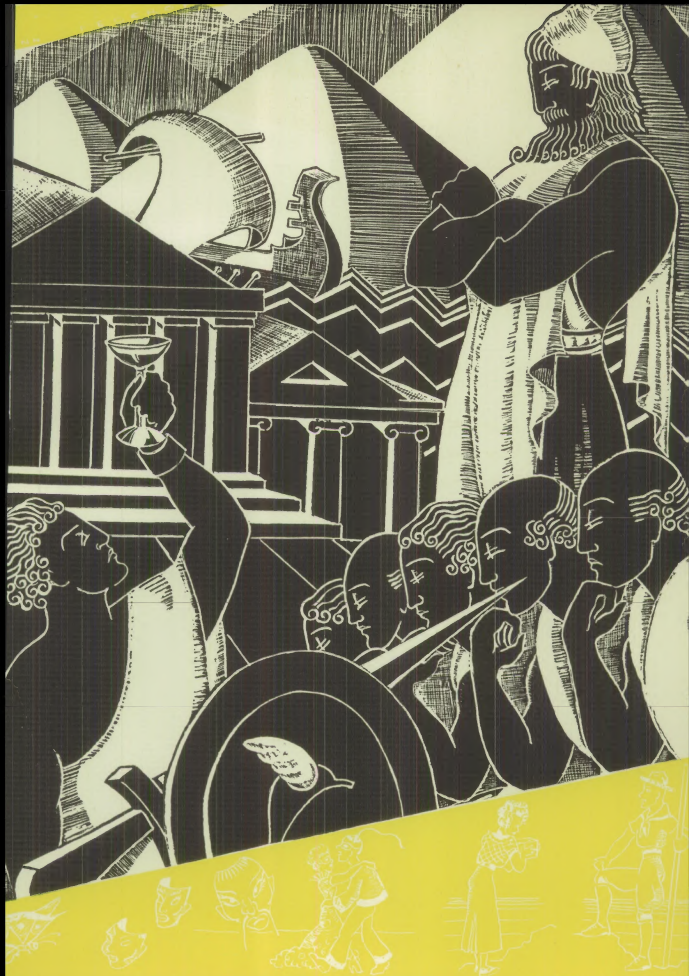

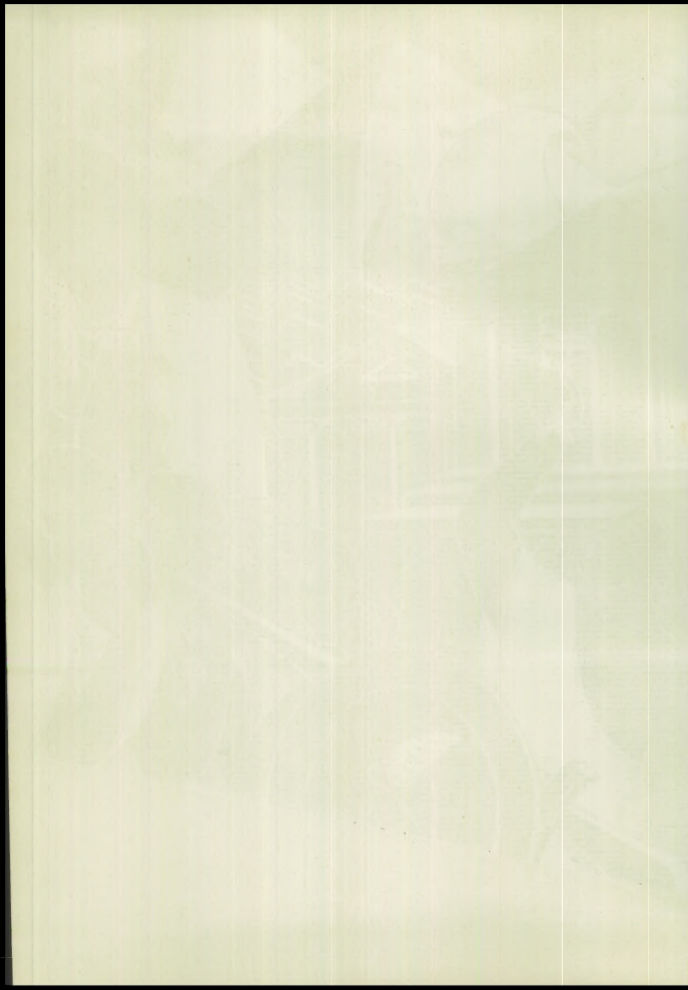

ORGANIZATIONS

"I am become a name;
For always roaming with a hungry heart
Much have I seen and known; cities of men,
And manners, climates, councils, governments,
Myself not least, but honored of them all;
And drunk delight of battle with my peers,
Far on the ringing plains of windy Troy."

Frosh—Aces in Scholarship

Just as coveted as membership in the proverbial "400" of New York is the privilege of belonging to the Ace of Clubs, Hammond High's exclusive Freshman organization to which only "A" or "B" students are eligible. The club, which is directed by Miss Pritchard, has done a great deal to stimulate interest in extra-curricular activities.

Officers of the club the first semester were Wyval Rowan, president; Ruth Hamacher, vice-president; Robert Yarnell, secretary; Robert Williams, treasurer and Mildred Howard, Herald reporter. Aces the second semester were Jim Cook, president; Tom Cook, vice-president; Selina Mayhew, secretary; Jane Leggitt, treasurer; and Jack Sullivan, Herald reporter.

Artists' Club—Crafty Organization

Not content with furnishing art work for the activities of other organizations, the Arts and Crafts Club, under the supervision of Miss Schubkegel, sponsored in April the "Bal Mandarin," one of the major dances of the school year. Meetings of the Arts and Crafts Club were devoted to discussions of modern art and artists; during the year the club was addressed by several guest speakers; the club also attended a lecture by Dudley Crafts Watson and visited Frank Dudley, noted for his paintings and etchings of the Dunes.

Officers of the club for the first semester were Jack Cavan, president; Dorothy Rawlins, vice-president; and Darline Ashby, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester they were Jack Cavan, president; Charles Black, vice-president; and Warren Harris, secretary-treasurer.

School Naturalists—Guardians of Wall Flowers

"Hand me down my butterfly net" was the ruling cry of head gardener Reeder and the forty-eight members of the Biology Club as they made numerous field trips in the course of the year. This nature society was responsible for the flower boxes seen throughout the school and contributed to the library a book by L. O. Howard, titled "Fighting the Insects." As a special project for the year, these adherents of natural beauty arranged a microscopic exhibit of samples of commercial face powder, focusing its attention upon the complexions of Hammond High's shrinking violets.

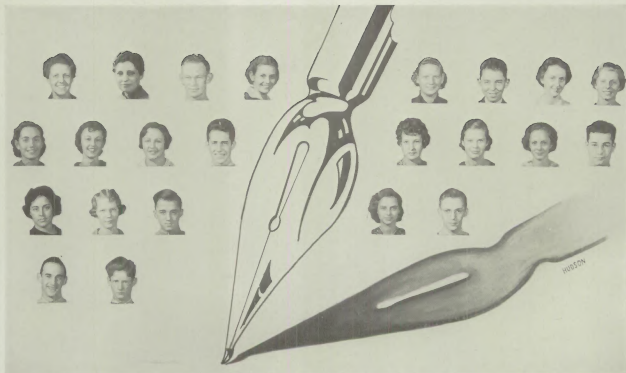

Officers for the first semester were Robert Bigelow, president; Mildred Marks, vice-president; Margaret Sobek, secretary and Doris Lungren, treasurer. For the second semester officers were Lawrence Gutowsky, president; Laura Rogers, vice-president; Ronita Osby, secretary; and Herbert Auer, treasurer.

Student Librarians—Auxiliary Corps

The Library Staff, under the direction of Miss Hawver, consists of students interested in library work. Some students have assisted in the library throughout their four years in high school. Duties of the staff include filing books and magazines, cataloging and shelving books, issuing notices concerning fines and overdue books, helping students find books and reference material, attending to errands and checking library attendance. A party for the entire staff was held during the Christmas season.

Bohemians—Budding Literatti

One of Hammond High's most exclusive organizations is the Bohemian Club, supervised by Miss Chapman and Miss McGranahan. Its membership consists of a group of students who are talented and interested in the various phases of creative writing. At their meetings, held with more or less regularity, the Bohemians read and discussed masterpieces of poetry, short stories, essays, and other literary efforts which they had composed since the previous meeting. These were discussed and criticised by both members and sponsors. Contemporary authors and books also were discussed and argued over. Because of a lack of funds the writers did not publish a magazine of club compositions as they did last year; copies of outstanding works will, however, be kept on file in the high school library. At the high school Fair the club presented two original one act plays. The club also sponsored a trip to Chicago to see Maxwell Anderson's play, "Mary, Queen of Scotland."

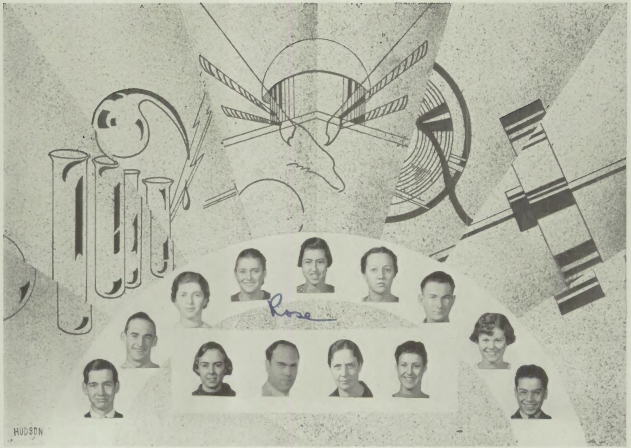

Officers for the first semester were Shirley Chandler, president; Margaret McCall, vice-president; and Helen Bieker, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester they were Bob Pence, president; Mary Jean Frantz, vice-president; and Ruth Diamond, secretary-treasurer.

Pawalec Mr. Rupp Bernstein Dubbert Sobek

Book-Room—Nook for Business

"Get your textbooks early," was the plea of Bolsh Pawalec, Margaret Sobek, Frank Bernstein, and Lauretta Dubbert, who, under the supervision of Mr. Rupp, acted as the middle-men for our school supplies and tickets. The book-room was one of the busiest places in school with students and teachers passing continually in and out (especially during the World Series). Enough money passed through the hands of these cashiers to buy curtains for a greenhouse; enough paper was sold to make confetti to greet Dizzy Dean; enough books were sold to make flower presses for every spring flower, and many students interviewed Mr. Rupp.

Wranglers—In Argument About Schools

The batteries for this year's newly organized debate squad were Mr. Elliott and Miss Cunningham. The line-up included Robert Pence, Helen Rae Elledge, and Ray Patton for the affirmative, and Audrey Bond, Catherine Short, and Vernon Windell for the negative. The yes and no outfits won the county and the district championship, and participated in the zone where they lost the decision to Central of South Bend. Rated as one of the sixteen best squads in the state, the Hammond teams participated in the Wheaton College Invitational Tournament held in Wheaton, Illinois. They did not, however, retain the cup won in 1934. The question debated this year was whether the Federal Government should provide funds to help support the schools.

The Junior Debating League, coached by Miss Robison, held several intra-mural debates as well as having a dual meet against George Rogers Clark.

Business Students—Busy Handy Andys

Wanted—a handy organization to do odd jobs around the school. The Commercial Club was just the organization to fill that bill. While its members did not cut the grass, trim the hedges, and tend the furnaces, they did sell tickets for the Fall Play, the Fair, and their roller skating party. Ushering and other odd jobs were also performed by the C. C. C. workers (Coöperative Commercial Club).

Mr. Schubert was supervisor for the handy men while Fred Weliky was president; Katherine Bereolos, vice-president; Frank Bernstein, treasurer; and Margaret Sobek, secretary.

Garment Group—Sew, Sew in Activities

A new club was added this year to the roster of Hammond High School activities when the Clothing Club (Quick, Henry, the needle!) was organized with Miss Bowles as head button-holer. During the season a tea was given for mothers of club members. At the style show presented at the Fair a thread line was formed when clothes made by club members were exhibited. Needless to say, at club meetings such subjects as styles, make-up, and accessories were discussed.

Chief clothiers of the club were Lois Wilson, president; Marcia Brundson, vice-president; Norma Dye, secretary; and Elmyra Papageorge, treasurer.

Masquers—In Accord with Dionysus

In addition to sponsoring the Fall Play, "Three Wise Fools," one of the two major dramatic productions of the year, the Dramatic Club, guided by Miss Davis, presented in an auditorium session a one act comedy called "First Dress Suit" and at the Fair a farce called "Dress Reversal." The casts in most of the other dramatic productions presented at the school consisted mainly of Dramatic Club members. The club also held a party during the Christmas season.

Officers were Rosemary Mullen, president; Peggy Ballard, vice-president; Ruth Seaman, secretary; and Lucille Edwards, treasurer.

Hall Proctors—Alert Vigilants

Organized to enforce hall rules as well as check lockers, hall monitors issued about one hundred court notices in addition to issuing a large number of notices to students who had failed to lock their lockers. After school and at the beginning of each period monitors are assigned to check all lockers, and if any is found open the occupants are required to pay a five cent fine.

The monitors were under the supervision of Miss Breyfogle the first semester and Miss Strange the second semester. Arlouse Freyman, Secretary of Safety, was student head of this organization.

Orchestra and Band—In Tune with Activity

Hammond High's musical organizations, by winning district contests and furnishing entertainment for school, city, and athletic affairs, have come to be considered among the foremost of the state from the standpoint of ability and participation in extra-curricular activities.

Both the Boys' band and the orchestra placed first in the district band contest at La Porte, entitling the units to compete in the State Contest at Evansville, May 3-4. Eleven soloists winning distinction were Mary Dugan, Ruth Meyers, Adele Modjeska, Robert Work,

Although the musical work really is an extra-curricular activity, credit is granted for participation in it. The bands and orchestra are directed by Mr. Diercks and Mr. Weiner.

Hobbyists—Linguistic Adepts

A real French atmosphere was created this year in the activities of the French Hobby Club. In addition to conducting meetings in the French language, club members corresponded with students in France and included as one of their projects the preparation of a scrap-book of interesting pictures, cartoons and literature for the patients of a children's hospital in France. They also viewed a French movie at International House.

Officers of the French Hobby Club, which is sponsored by Miss Robards, were for the first semester, Murel Crumpacker, president; Margaret McCall, vice-president; Irene Sakas, secretary; and Murle Borchardt, treasurer. Those for the second semester were Mary Jean Frantz, president; Barbara Falls, vice-president; Gertrude Cohen, secretary; and Verna Atkinson, treasurer.

G. A. C.—Ignorers of Golden Apples

With no Milanion to distract their attention with golden apples, the G.A.C. outdid the prowess of the mythical girl athlete, Atalanta, by organizing splash parties, skating parties, hiking parties (no thumbs allowed), bicycle parties, outdoor activities at Camp Paxton, and a special Play Day set aside to bring all the girls of the school together for games, competitive sports, and a variety of entertainment. This Play Day was the first ever held at Hammond High. The Sampsonesses further showed their versatility by juggling dishes at the Boys' Athletic Banquet and in successfully sponsoring the "Nautical Dance." Lucille John was chosen by the G.A.C. sponsors, Miss Anderson and Miss Dieterich, as the most versatile girl athlete in the Senior Class.

Officers of the club were Winifred Tuley, president; Kathryn McGrath, vice-president; Louise Auch, treasurer; and Verna Atkinson, secretary.

Der Deutsche Verein—Bunny Hopping Linguists

Forsaking the Goose-Step for the Bunny-Hop, the German Club had charge of a successful pre-Easter dance. For the Fair the club had planned to stage a puppet show but this project grew up into a hot dog stand. Entertainments held for the club were a pot-luck Christmas party and a Saturday outing at the Dunes. In case any one wonders about the significance of the letters D.V. on the newly adopted pin, he will find them explained in a German dictionary under the words Deutscher Verein.

The German Club, sponsored by Miss Schuelke, is limited to students making "C" or above in German. Dictators for the first semester were Beth Williams, president; Howard Vonderhere, vice-president; June Apon, secretary; and Frieda Reichers, treasurer. Officers for the second semester were Howard Vonderhere, president; Arthur Friedman, vice-president; Ruth Lichtsinn, secretary; and Mildred Schmueser, treasurer.

Hi-Y Devotees—Active in Conference

Activities of the Junior and the Senior Hi-Y began the second week of the school year when a banquet was given to initiate new members of the Junior organization. At the beginning of the football season, the club printed athletic schedules and distributed them to the entire student body (including the football team). At the State Older Boys' Conference held at Fort Wayne in December, Hammond was represented by a large delegation. The Lake County Older Boys' Conference was held in Hammond, March 19, under the auspices of the local Hi-Y. The local group also aided in organizing a Hi-Y club at Griffith. The Senior Hi-Y had charge of the annual Fair Dance.

The Junior Hi-Y sponsored its second annual ping-pong tournament in April. Activities for the year were concluded May 11 with the annual Hi-Y "round-up" staged by the Junior Hi-Y for the graduating Senior Hi-Y.

Officers for the Senior Hi-Y, sponsored by Mr. Seddelmeyer, were Beryl Morris, president; James Dycus, vice-president; Robert Summers, secretary; and Marlin Van Stright, treasurer. Girl Reserves—Co-operative Triad

The Girl Reserves, a club affiliated with the local Y.W.C.A., boasts the largest membership of any school organization. Because of its size, three groups have been formed: Dramatic, Outdoor, and Charm, each girl in the club choosing the group in which she is most interested. The club assisted in initiations of Girl Reserve members at Thornton Fractional and George Rogers Clark, conducted a Recognition Service for its own members, and participated in the Fellowship Dinner held for Girl Reserves organizations of the community. The Girl Reserves had charge of after school candy sales throughout the year and at the Fair operated a peanut vending machine. Teas and table talks for the Charm Group, plays for the Dramatic Group, and hikes and roller skating parties for the Outdoor Group completed activities for the year.

With Miss Bollenbach as general supervisor of the Reserves, Miss Kennedy served as leader of the Dramatic Group, Miss White directed the Outdoor Group, and Miss Schuelke guided the Charm Group. Officers were Audrey Bell, president; Winifred Tuley, vice-president; Marjorie Sohl, secretary; and Marjorie Sampson, treasurer.

Junior Red Cross—In Philanthropic Projects

The Junior Red Cross, under the direction of Miss vanDoorninick, raised money to further its social projects by selling candy at football and basketball games, distributed toys and food baskets to the needy at Christmas and Thanksgiving, sent delegates to city wide meetings and the state convention at Indianapolis, and exchanged portfolios with students in Brussels, Belgium. Emily Herbold represented this organization at the national convention held in Washington, D. C. Catherine Short was secretary of the Junior Red Cross.

Duces—Stimulant to Scout Movement

Taking its name from the Latin word "duces" meaning leadership, the newly organized Duces Club, led by Mr. Wilson, sponsored two patrol-leaders' pow-wows, one of them being held in the Wallace Gymnasium and the other at Wicker Park. The purpose of this group, which believes in the old maxim, "Once a Boy Scout, always a Boy Scout," is to stimulate interest in scouting among Hammond High students. The only requirement for membership in the Duces Club is to be a Boy Scout in good standing. Meetings are devoted to discussions of scouting and informal talks by members and guest speakers.

Officers were William Eckman, president; Carl Jacobson, vice-president; George Baci, secretary; and Edmund Austgen, treasurer.

Matrix Makers—Pica Producers

A highlight of the activities of the Press Club was the banquet held in honor of Benjamin Franklin's birthday. Meetings of these future press-idents were devoted to discussions of various phases of printing. At the high school Fair these exponents of ems and ens held an "open-house" in the print shop, giving those attending the Fair a chance to go through the print shop to see the presses in action.

Officers of the club, which is sponsored by Mr. Howe, were Jack Hemstock, president; Edwin Moats, vice-president; Glen Berger, secretary; and John Planer, treasurer.

Honor Students—Faculty Choice

The National Honor Society, consisting of graduating seniors chosen by the faculty for being outstanding in scholarship, leadership, character, and spirit of service, devoted its meetings this year mainly to talks by outside speakers. This organization, under the supervision of Miss Gustafson, directed ticket sales for the zone championship debate held between Hammond and Central of South Bend and also sponsored a refreshment concession at the Fair.

Officers of the National Honor Society were John Keeler, president; Robert Brown, vice-president; Gretchen Hopman, secretary; and Charles Krug, treasurer.

Sphinx Members—Challengers of Social Flaws

The Sphinx Club, a stone's throw from nowhere, is a hard thinking group of boys and girls, which takes great pride in figuring out how to remedy all social flaws. To acquire membership among the ranks of the Sphinx Club, one doesn't have to be a sphinx, nor does he even have to know one. Anyone who makes the grade of "A" in any social science course is eligible to be a part of this great citizenship-making organization. Outside speakers presented problems of current interest to the club thus electrifying the members. A general discussion was held after each lecture.

For the past two semesters the Sphinx Club members were led by Vernon Windell. Other officers during the first term were Alice Brady, Virginia Good, and Lucy Granger. Ruth Brown, Anne Hopman, and Adele Modjeska relieved them during the second semester. Miss Burhans and Miss Breyfogle are the pyramids for this mentally active organization.

Motor Group—In Gear for Safety

Gear Ye! Gear Ye! Throughout the current year, Hammond High's Automobile Club accelerated its efforts on organizing and directing a safety campaign. It composed and published a list of rules for safety in the building, and, in cooperation with the Chicago Motor Club, stressed by means of posters, the necessity of carefulness on the part of both pedestrians and drivers. The club sponsored an auditorium session devoted to safety, and compiled, published, and distributed a graph showing the number of accidents in Hammond. In addition to conducting a safety campaign, members of the club shifted their activities to visit the Hegewisch plant of the Ford Motor Company.

The club, sponsored by Mr. Keeler, is open to all students who possess a driver's license. This year "Bud" Johnson was chief mechanic of the group; Jack Krouse, vice-president; and Marcella Horsch, secretary-treasurer.

Mixed Ensemble—Potential Tibbets and Jeritzas

The Choral Club, Hammond's mixed music ensemble, was very active this year. In addition to singing before twenty different organizations throughout the Region, the "noted" ones, under the direction of Miss Cain, put on the play "Why the Chimes Rang" before the Rotary Club and sponsored a Christmas dance.

Officers for the first semester were Betty Bock, president; Bob Bigelow, vice-president; Elmyra Papageorge, secretary-treasurer; and Lorenzo Wartena, librarian. Those for the second semester were Lorenzo Wartena, president; Bill Belshaw, vice-president; Bob Bigelow, secretary; and Ruth Boyer, librarian.

Feminine Warblers—Always on the Go

With ten thousand years of sing sing as its goal the Girls' Glee Club sang at one of the high school orchestra concerts, caroled in the halls of the high school at Christmas, warbled in the In-And-About-Chicago Chorus, and hit high C at the Circus Dance which was given with the Boys' Glee Club. Under the direction of Miss Cain, the club needed no crutches and had a very successful and enjoyable year. The Girls' Octette and Girls' Sextette were part of this organization.

The officers for the first semester were Lillis McDowell, president; Henriette Herschback, vice-president; Creole Schaefer, secretary and Murel Crumpacker librarian. For the second semester they were Jean Hatchman, president; Joan Termini, vice-president; Virginia Volkman, secretary; and Frances Johnson, librarian.

Male Vocalists—Regional Performers

The Boys' Glee Club, working hook, line and singer, sang before six organizations in the region; it entertained the Hammond Woman's Club, the Kiwanians, the P.T.A. and also vocalized at the Zone Championship Debate. This unit also cooperated in presenting the "Circus Dance."

The officers of this club, which is directed by Miss Cain, were James Herder, president; Glen McCay, vice-president; Harold Wolf, secretary; and Elmo Britton, librarian, for the first semester. For the second semester, they were Elmo Britton, president; Glen McCay, vice-president; Howard Rippe, secretary and James Herder, librarian.

Group Seven—Makers of Mood Indigo

Group Seven, Hammond High's colored vocal organization, presented programs before the Hammond Woman's Club, various churches, Hammond High P. T. A., Kenwood P. T. A. and at the lecture given by Professor Patty. Subscription Staff—Persistent Campaigners

The Dunes Staff organized a new subscription system this year by appointing an advisory agent for each advisory. The success of this system is attested by the fact that over four hundred more subscriptions were sold this year than last. Regular meetings were held at which plans for bettering the campaign were discussed. One of the novel ideas that these chosen fifty-two Dunes campaigners used to stimulate interest was a "telegram campaign" in which they sent a clever wire to each extra-curricular organization, requesting it to support the Dunes campaign. A typical example of these telegrams is that sent to the House of Representatives which reads as follows: "BOTH YOUR HOUSES ARE OK STOP EVERYBODY KNOWS THAT STOP SAY YOUSE REPRESENTATIVES YOU CAN DO A LOT FOR US IF YOU WILL STOP THE DUNES STAFF WISHES YOU A LOT OF NEW BILLS AND PLENTY OF LEGISLATION DURING THE YEAR AND HOPES YOU WILL BACK US TO THE LIMIT STOP WE NEED YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AND IF WE NEED LEGAL ADVICE RIGHT TO YOU WE'LL COME STOP."

At the "Turkey Trot," fancy pre-Thanksgiving dance sponsored by the Dunes, each advisory agent was given a complimentary ticket. At the end of the year these Dunes enthusiasts, together with the Dunes Staff, held a pot luck supper.

Dunes Staff—Advocates of Activity

Believing that it has succeeded in producing a yearbook that will help the graduating seniors value the activities that have characterized their school life, and that it will stimulate the under-classmen to increase their participation in activities, the Dunes staff passes its finished product on to you. The staff, sponsored by Miss McGranahan, was composed of two main branches—editorial and business. The Editor-in-Chief was Mary Anne Sohl; she was assisted by Virginia Good, who will edit the 1936 "Dunes." Mary Anne chose an editorial staff of fourteen members. Marjorie Blocker and Jeanne Carsman were the two Senior Class editors. Marjorie was also responsible for the "stick-men" in the senior section and for numerous write-ups. Lucille John was class editor and was responsible for the layout of the class section. Tom Cosgrove and Chuck Hohman were Boys' Sports editors and Gretchen Hopman was Girls' Sports editor. Anne Federoff served as Art editor; to Anne goes credit for the art work on the division pages of the book. Charles Black designed the cover and subtitle page. To Ray Hudson, cartoonist, goes credit for the caricatures and cartoons found throughout the book. Jack Black acted as literary editor and T. M. Dakin served as feature writer. Billy Tuley was snapshot collector. The staff typist was Katherine Bereolos, and Audrey Bell was club editor.

Dick Whitney and Kenneth Means were the business managers; Kenneth will also manage the 1936 book. Others on the business staff were Edward Eggebrecht, Bill Sohl, Ralph Newlin, Mary Lee Brown, Gerald Buehler and Bill LeRoy. They solicited approximately five hundred dollars' worth of advertising.

Embryonic Greeleys—Zealous News Hounds

In addition to publishing the Calumet Herald each week, the Herald staff, under the supervision of Mr. Crews, installed loud speaker systems for football and basketball games, competed in the Medill Journalism Contest at Northwestern University, sent delegates to the State Press Convention at Franklin and sponsored the second annual Press Dance. Each of the journalism classes participated in publishing a cub edition of the Herald.

"Though much is taken, much abides; and though
We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are;
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Mr. Nelson, line coach, was chosen All-State Guard in his final year at Wabash, and was also captain of the basketball team.

Captain Les Adams—Valuable End

The leader of this year's team was particularly outstanding on defense. He was one of the most valuable ends in the conference, and his excellent leadership was an inspiration to his teammates.

Night Lights—Magnet to Crowds

With only the moon shining in their eyes, the Wildcats played their second straight successful year under the night lights. Equipped with the best lighted field in the circuit, Hammond drew the largest football crowds in the Calumet Region, and created new enthusiasm from the townspeople who were unable to attend games played in the daytime.

Warm Up Drill—Offensive Formation

Purple Performer

Krause— One of the smartest ends in the Calumet District, Jack played stalwart defense all year and pulled the Froebel game out of the bag when he caught a pass in the closing minutes of the game.

Kryzanowski—"Chiz," a short, stocky, but powerful Wildcat, played the fullback position with plenty of drive. His most outstanding game was against Catholic Central, when he did everything but carry the eleven opponents on his back. He was rewarded with a medal for being one of the most outstanding football players in the district.

Mueller— Playing at center position, "Babe" was battered and cleated all season, but came up with a lot of drive for a man who was playing his first year of competition.

Kraus— A boy who had the courage and fight to stick it out for four years, Kraus was well rewarded when he alternated the guard position with Krug.

Hurt— A quarterback who could always be depended upon to work hard, Bob's one big specialty was his ability to drop-kick.

Harris— A hard runner and excellent blocker, Billy played a lot of ball the latter part of the season. With the football knowledge he gained this year, Harris should be a razor claw in the Wildcat attack next fall.

Kiefer— A new man to the game of football, Paul soon learned the ropes and is expected to go great guns next year as a guard.

Grafton— Another fast man who played the right half position, Ercel was a great passer for the team, and it was through him that many of our long gains were accomplished.

Salczynski— After being out of school a year, Ed came back to play a great year of football for the Cats. At the left half position he was given the opportunity to cut, drive, and pass, all of which he did well.

Winterhalter— Small, light, alert, Jack led the squad in many a battle and showed great field generalship in the Froebel game.

Gursansky— Handicapped by injuries, "Dinks," noted for passing and blocking, didn't have a chance to show his real worth.

Rupert— Ray, playing consistent ball, was a dependable quarterback and ball totter.

Aggressive Gridmen

Yablonski—Shifting, fast, aggressive, Wallie was an outstanding left halfback and open field runner.

Haak— From tackle to fullback to tackle was Big Bob's course, and he was efficient at both positions. At fullback he was too big to stop, and at tackle position he was a stone wall.

Keeler— Good on both offense and defense, Johnnie made a dependable and fighting guard giving the opposition plenty to worry about.

Brown— Left tackle was Big Ed Brown's specialty, and he played the position with great success. Paving the way for a touchdown in the Froebel game when he recovered a fumble was his outstanding play of the year.

G. Stillson— Playing bang-up ball for an inexperienced man, George did great work at the end position, and he booted the ball with great success.

Marciniak— One of the coolest thinking men on the squad, Eddie was switched from halfback to quarter and was a real asset to the team at that position. He was relied upon for his passing and, as the season progressed, did most of the kicking.

Hood— Small, heavy, George played the tackle position. A hard man to go through, he was a real fighter on the Wildcat line.

Gross— Handicapped by injuries the greater part of the season, Gross didn't get many chances to show his fine knowledge of running and blocking. He will be back next year playing hard for the position of fullback.

Krug— Always playing a consistent game at guard, Charlie finished his last year of competition in great style after being a member of the Wildcat squad for three years.

Larimer— Tall and slender, "Red" generally handled the center position when Mueller was not in the game.

Horner— Substituting at tackle, Roy did a good job and his hard work in scrimmage aided greatly in straightening out the flaws of our team.

P. Stillson— A tall, rugged lad was Pete, who substituted frequently at the guard position.

Chartos— One of the outstanding sophomores on last year's squad, Bill played the center position. Since he has two more years, he is expected to develop into one of the best centers in the conference.

Three in a Row—Charm to Wildcats

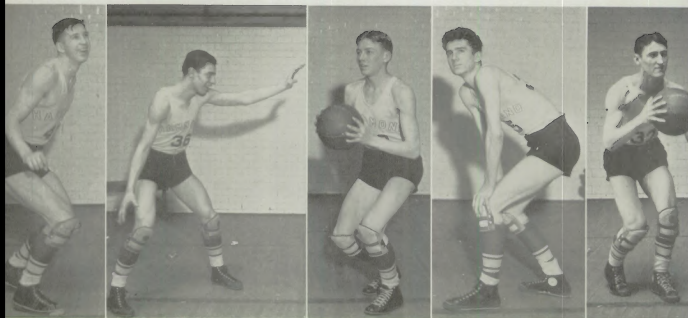

The third time was still the charm as Hammond High captured its third consecutive sectional title by defeating Washington, Roosevelt, Griffith, and Emerson. The "Cats" set a precedent, for no team had ever before won the sectional even twice in a row. In spite of new faces the team still had the old fire, and kept the winning spirit that was created in 1933.

Hoop Artists—Balanced Unit

Krause—Jack, playing his first year in tough competition, developed into one of the best centers in the region. Extending over six feet into the ozone, Jack controlled most of the tips and used the pivot play with great success.

Hashu—Nick was used at both the center and the guard position, and was a great help to the team. He played well under fire and much credit is due him for our fine work at Gary and LaPorte.

Lorenz—Basil was a sharp claw in the Wildcat attack, being a great man to send in to enliven the game. The basket accepted his shots for 144 points.

Bigelow—Bob, by virtue of his fine work throughout the season with the Kittens, was added to the Wildcat roster at tournament time. Also two yards tall, he developed into a fine center.

LaPlante—Fritz, the shortest man on the squad, was valuable to the team because of his fast, shifty playing.

Higgins—Jerry was a typical Wildcat, being quick, sure, and tricky. He hit the hoop for 144 markers and was honored for his playing at the sectional by being placed on the all-tourney team.

Marciniak—Eddie was a player whose drive, spirit, and play helped make the Wildcats the champions they were.

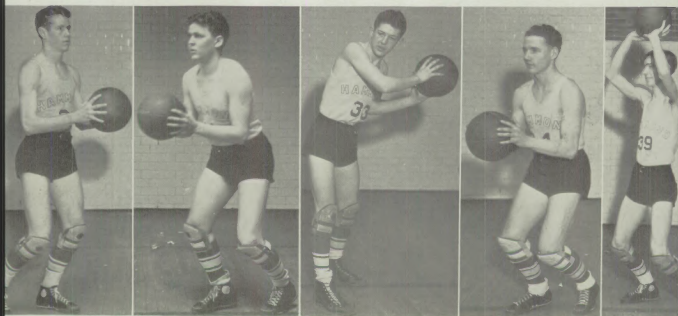

Hudson—Speed at guard frequently disheartened opposing teams by his brilliant play. Hooping 162 points, he finished second in the individual scoring, and was considered one of the best potshot guards in the history of the school.

Yablonowski—Wally was another typical Wildcat with all round ability. He garnered 202 points to lead his team in scoring, and his drive-in shots were almost always good for 2 points or 2 free throws.

Egnatz—Nick was a fine asset to the Cats for his cheerful attitude, his constant team enthusiasm, and his work at forward.

Setting a precedent for other Wildcat teams, our cinder scrapers, York, Papuga, Tanis, Bungler, Holbrook, McKay, Staresnick, and Dycus, coached by Mr. Easton, won the Conference cross country championship by eliminating such rivals as Horace Mann, Froebel, Roosevelt, Lew Wallace, Emerson, and others. An outstanding man of this year's squad was Ned York who was undefeated during the season and who set a new cinder record of 9:53 for the two-mile run.

The conference meet was not decided until the last event when the medley relay team won to give Hammond the title. At the state meet Hammond placed third with fifteen points trailing Central of South Bend which scored twenty-one points and Washington of East Chicago which marked up seventeen tallies.

Swim Captain—Free Style Expert

Carl Jacobson, leading free style swimmer, was a member of the record breaking medley relay team in addition to being a consistent point getter in free style events during the past two years.

Frosh Diver—Spring-Board Specialist

Jimmy Cook, freshman diver, took all honors on the board and was generally regarded as unofficial state diving champion, having been undefeated throughout the season. Diving is not included in the state swimming meet.

Medley Champs—Individual Stars

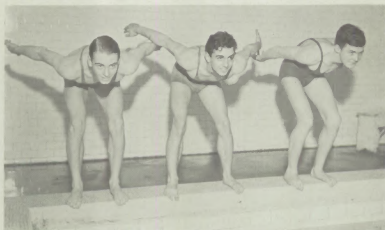

Walter Meyn, Ted Thomas, and Carl Jacobson composed the medley relay team which established new records at both the Northern Indiana Conference and the Indiana State Swimming Meet. Meyn and Thomas further distinguished themselves when Meyn set a new state back-stroke record and Thomas established a new state breast-stroke mark. Jacobson was an outstanding free-style performer.

Avenging two early season defeats at the hands of Roosevelt, the Hammond wrestlers, coached by Mr. Scott, won the Northern Indiana Conference Championship with Roosevelt placing second. Seven Wildcat representatives won conference crowns; those winning were Etienne, Zick, Funk, Morton, Keeler, Adams, and Haak. Prior to the conference meet, Hammond had lost to Roosevelt by scores of 19-14 and 21-18; schools defeated by Hammond in pre-conference meets were Proviso, Morgan Park, and Washington.

Following the state meet, members of the Hammond team competed in the Central A.A.U. meet and the National A.A.U. meet. Bob Haak won the Central A.A.U. title in the heavyweight division and Earl Zick placed second in the 118 pound class.

Captain Keeler—Champ in Tough Division

John Keeler, captain of the Purple wrestlers, won the conference championship in the 145 pound class. John had tough competition throughout the season as a large number of high school wrestlers belong to this weight division. He also competed in the National A.A.U. meet held at Oklahoma City.

Racket Wielders—Promising Material

With a lineup consisting of underclassmen, Hammond's tennis team, coached by Mr. Hendricks, succeeded in holding its own against tough conference competition. With another year's experience these netmen should dominate the conference.

Buhler, Gauthier, Lucht, Sohl, Brose, Dutton.

Speedball Enthusiasts—Winter Their Waterloo

Old Man Winter intervened before the finals of the girls' interclass speedball tournament could be held. After the sophomores had defeated the freshmen, and the seniors had nosed out the juniors, cold weather prevented the sophomores and the seniors from meeting for the championship. From the four class teams Miss Anderson selected an all-school team consisting of Drzich, Chintis, Bein, Marovich, Osby, Sohl, Maroc, John, Brusch, Granger, Bonnie, Evyan, and Petzinger.

Basketeers—In Inter-Class Meet

With the coming of February, serious competition was started among our girl athletes for positions on class basketball teams. The interclass meet was held in April under the supervision of Miss Anderson. In the first round of this meet the freshmen were defeated by the sophomores and the seniors were victorious over the juniors in a double-overtime. The seniors then defeated the sophomores to win the school championship. From the four teams, an all-school team was picked consisting of Boyer, Bonnie, John, Zych, Stromske, Chintis, O'Kelly, Schrieber, and Wiatrowski.

Splashers—In Record Performances

Establishment of four new conference records featured the work of the girls' varsity swimming team, coached by Miss Dieterich. Competing in a telegraphic meet with other conference schools the Hammond team, composed of Betty Betz, Gretchen Hopman, Lucy Jo Brusch, Angelus Bonnie, Dorothy Pratt, Mary Evyan, Mable Bourne, and Martha Beiderwieden, placed second, scoring forty-six points to trail the victorious Whiting team by one point. The record performances were made by Betty Betz who broke the twenty-yard and the forty-yard free-style record, by Dorothy Pratt who set a new twenty-yard breast stroke mark, and by the sixty-yard medley team consisting of Betty Betz, Dorothy Pratt, and Lucy Jo Brusch.

"There lies the port; the vessel puffs her sail;
There gloom the dark broad seas. My mariners,
Souls that have toiled, and wrought, and thought with me—
That ever with a frolic welcome took
The thunder and the sunshine, and opposed
Free hearts, free foreheads—you and I are old;
Old age hath yet his honor and his toil;
Death closes all; but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done."

Archives of Hammond High—As Babson Would See Them

One bright morning I was rudely awakened in advisory, and shoved along with two thousand other students to be inspected for scarlet fever. The doctor rammed a paddle down my throat, filling it with splinters. When he had the entire paddle and his hand well down my esophagus, he commanded me to say, "Ah," which is about as easy as reciting the Gettysburg Address with one's head under water. Throwing the paddle into a cute waste basket, he next told me to "bare" my chest. Just the day before, Mrs. Rupp had told me to remove my "parentheses," so naturally I thought the school was invoking a "nude" deal.

Day after day we went through the same routine, until it happened that I made my first mistake. One night I went into Chicago to listen to the harmonious discords of Cab Calloway, who was playing on the stage. Cab was so hot that I broke out in a rash.—That should be the end of the story, but it isn't. The next morning I saw our neighbors with a new car and I turned green with envy.

Well, sir, would you believe it, the doc passed me right up the next day during inspection, for who ever heard of green fever?

Upon leaving the doctor's office, however, I became obsessed with the peculiar hallucination that I was Roger Babson and proceeded to spend the day garnering figures about the inner workings of our school.

Many people know there are about 2,400 students in Hammond High, but few, having experienced my rashness, realize just what this means.

Stop a moment and, if possible, think. Do you comprehend? Are you all dopes? If there are 2,400 enrolled in Hammond high, do you ever stop to realize what a huge number of teeth attend this school most of the time? An average child of high school age is naturally endowed with the blessing of 28 teeth. However, due to basketball games with Froebel, junior-senior fights, and blondes, there is, on an average, 26 teeth to the mouth. This, my frans, this makes a grand total of 62,000 teeth that come to school.

Isn't that something to make your head whirl? Mine is whirling, but this immense calculation does not stop here. Oh no! We have not yet considered the shoe laces. If there are 2,400 students, there will be 4,800 feet and also 4,800 shoes. Taking into consideration the new zipper shoes, we shall allow an average of four holes or eyelets on each side of each shoe which makes eight to a shoe or 16 for both feet to one student; one student, mind you. This makes 38,000 holes for shoe laces to go through. And, you numbskulls, what is a hole? A hole is nothing, isn't it? There is absolutely nothing in a hole. And so we have, as a result, 38,000 pieces of nothing.

Having garnered these preliminary statistics, my heated brain next forced me into the boiler room where I learned that eighteen motors of various sizes supply all the power needed to make us comfortable in the school.

I further learned from one of the janitors that the room contains three boilers of 150 horse power, each fed by an automatic stoker. This heating plant uses well over 700 tons of coal per year. Combined with the heating plant is an air conditioning plant which ventilates the rooms; air comes to this system through two large pipes at the north and south ends of the building. The various rooms are controlled by a single switch-board on the east wall of the boiler room; there is not a single fuse used as all the electricity is controlled by a single switch-board which is connected with a series of breakers. For the girls' and boys' pools two vacuum pumps are used for cleaning the water.

Having learned all there was to learn about the boiler room, my senses, made keen through green fever, led me across to the cafeteria, our local tower of Babel, where I saw enough cherry pies to extend across to the city hall and learned that the following is the food consumption for an average day; 100 pounds of potatoes, 12 loaves of bread, 10 pounds of butter, 30 pounds of fish (Friday), 300 half-pints of milk, 10 pounds of cookies, 12 boxes of candy, 8 heads of lettuce and 5 gallons of jello.

The sight of all this food made me violently ill, in view of the fact that I had, less than a half hour ago, partaken of an eight-course dinner. So-o-o, I hastened from the offending spot out into the corridor. Gradually, I became attracted by a dull, regular pounding which was coming from the other end of the building. Forgetting all about the feeling in the pit of my stomach, I wandered toward the place from which the thuds were coming. Reaching the door of a room numbered 18, from whence the sounds were coming in increased volume, I, led on by my effervescent curiosity, entered. I was immediately greeted by a rush of poundings, bangings, squeakings, and rumbling. Almost the instant I entered, I was confronted by a ferocious little tiger of a man with a bushy mustache and white bushy hair—in fact, made somewhat on the order of Einstein.

From him I obtained, without the aid of higher mathematics, the vital statistics of the print shop. I found that approximately 2,000 pounds of cardboard is used in a year and that there are 150 cases of type which include 25 different kinds of type. The shop has one linotype machine, one intertype machine, three roller presses, one proof press, and a large paper press. I counted fifteen printing students in the shop and they so terrified me by their industry that finally I rushed pell-mell from the room.

I wandered on down in the general direction of southward, and presently I saw a room into which and out of which a steady flow of people kept dashing. Intruding on the sound of the shuffling feet came a jingle, as of many pieces-of-8. Well, my curiosity overcoming me once more, I ventured to glance into the room—(numbered 8, to be precise). The sight which greeted my eyes was astonishing, to say the least. Betwixt the various types of statures which passed before my eyes, I saw a blond beauty sitting on a table tossing coins and bills into a huge cash register. I could see that this was no place for me, with donations being in progress, so I very unobtrusively removed myself.

My meanderings took me next to the girls' gym where the screeching of Hammond's Amazons at play forced me once again to make a hasty exit. So rapid was my flight from this cavernous pit of females that an alert monitor set out in pursuit, causing me to dash down the hall and into the first open doorway I could find. Puzzled I was again, for there before me was a human layout juggling what appeared to be jig-saw puzzles.

Fearing their task was a hopeless one, I rushed up the stairs to view encased in our trophy case the cups, symbolic of past victories, shining like so many copies of the Holy Grail.

Within their brilliant light I saw the glitter of a thousand needles beckoning me to perambulate to the sewing room. I watched the potential button-holers in the sewing room until I was nearly in stitches and then went to the office.

At the office I observed that five out of eight teachers in school chewed gum. Ninety pupils passed in and out (I hope they passed out) of the office in a single period. Thirty came in for being either falsely or correctly placed on the absentee slip. Thirty came in for errands. Eight came in to telephone. Three got satisfactory excuses. One got an unsatisfactory excuse. Eighteen came in for miscellaneous reasons. Fifteen saw Mr. Spohn.

While sitting in the office watching people and teachers come and go, the fumes of obnoxious gases drew me toward the chemistry lab. (There's a Long story to this one). After learning that the fumes were ammonia gas (I'm Rupp against it here, I thought), I tarried a while to study a scale so delicately constructed that it recorded the weight of a single hair. So engrossed did I become in this delicate apparatus that I became oblivious to the fumes until I grew drowsy from their numbing effect and sank into a slumber filled with dreams of long white tables set in the cafeteria for a gala athletic banquet.

I was awakened suddenly when an aspiring chemist plucked from my head a single hair, with which he evidently intended to have the scale do its stuff, and I rushed from the room for a breath of fresh air.

While I was outside, I was attracted by the smell of turpentine and fresh wood coming from the carpenter shop hidden away in the rear of the building. Upon approaching the shop, I was greeted by the head carpenter, Mr. Reeder, who told me that during his fourteen years of service he had built about 100 portable class rooms, five gyms and about 3,000 cabinet doors and 1,500 cabinets. His most peculiar job, he explained, was the construction of the rear view of a mule with the head turned backward.

Having absorbed all the fresh air and sawdust my lungs cared for, I entered the rear of the auditorium and climbed the winding, twisting, spiral stairs backstage till I reached the small platform from which the curtains and drops are raised and lowered. The numerous massive ropes that I saw made me think for the moment that I was on an old sailing vessel and, feeling slightly nauseated at the sight of nothing but space and ropes for approximately 75 feet below, I made a hasty descent. I tarried in the auditorium, which I observed was all clean and ready for use, only long enough to count the seats, which I found numbered 1,282.

From the auditorium I wended my way to the bookroom where I learned that our local emporium handles about $600 worth of second-hand books during the year in addition to selling about $6,000 worth of new ones. I learned also that an average of 60 packages of theme paper are sold per day, making a total of about 12,000 packages per year, and that the total income of the book room last year was $29,400, of which about $28,000 went for expenses. I found, in the records, accounts of 72 different high school groups which are handled through the book room.

Having become interested in books through my visit to the book room, I decided to make the library my next stopping place. Upon counting the books in the library, I found that it contained a total of 3,910 volumes of which 455 were fiction and 3,455 non-fiction.

From one of the encyclopedias in the library I learned that the physics lab. numbered among its possessions a telescope. Having never looked through a telescope, I hastened to room 118, where I learned that the aforementioned telescope was minus a lens. Feeling much chagrined, I went upstairs to the art room. Here I revelled in the brilliant colors of the murals displayed about the room until I was brought back to earth by the sound of students talking and Miss Schubkegel shouting, "Class, my nerves!" As the class continued to talk, however, I decided that perhaps the attic would provide a more artistic atmosphere, so I left the art room.

As I entered the attic an ominous silence greeted me. Then the low, steady hum of the great dynamo throbbed with my pulse beats as I ventured farther over gloomy catwalks which led over the huge round ventilating pipes winding and twisting like constrictors and losing themselves in a veritable jungle of crisscrossed beams and supports. I saw here and there switch boxes controlling the many electrical appliances like so many silent robots. I found roofing materials, tiles, flower boxes, screens, stacks of round black trays used in the cafeteria of yesterday, old ramshackle desks, and kegs of nails. Having partly conquered my ill boding, I became inquisitive and after a few minutes' search I came upon mysterious dark caverns, hidden corners, and treacherous drops, all suggesting the ideal setting for a lovely murder. After making sure that no crouching individual, or perhaps monster, was endeavoring to seek me out, I became quite at home and began looking in detail for the little things.

In my wandering I came upon 21 cases of eggs and birds' nests, and mounted moths dating back to 1870, a stuffed owl, a stuffed turkey buzzard, several species of stuffed ducks, an eagle, a ptarmigan, the tail feathers of a peacock, mounted fish, snakeskins, cowhides, and prize fishheads. All over the walls of this particular room were assorted heads and antlers of moose and deer, bighorn sheep, and mountain goats.

Among the articles used in the various plays and dramas of long ago were an old pair of hickory wood tongs, an old red fire bucket, costumes of all sorts, Roman shields, snowshoes, Indian war bonnets, bundles of flags, bunting, and bamboo canes.

The only implements in sight necessary for taking a body apart were an old operating table and an old dentist's chair. I found in another part of the attic trellises, steps, doors, windows, wicker chairs, fences, lamps, pagodas, temples, a replica of the sky ride, an oaken bucket in a well, a wooden pump, realistic pillars and fireplugs, and a wooden press of the Gutenberg type, several wooden camels, and several grotesque figures about eight feet tall.

After touring the attic, I counted the tiles on the roof of the building and found that they totaled 65,000. With this statistical finale, my survey was completed. The fresh air had driven away the last vestiges of my green fever and I hurried down the steps to become once again a small part of the student mob—slapping, kicking, punching, grasping, slamming, opening, banging, locking, throwing, laughing, talking, babbling, drinking, crunching, screaming, carrying, meeting, parting, running, walking, hustling, bustling, rummaging, giving, taking, sitting—a bell—my seventh hour class—and then grim silence, broken only at intervals by the sound of the feet of monitors and the occasional slamming of doors—silence—50 minutes—another bell—slapping, kicking, punching, grasping, slamming, opening, banging, locking, throwing, laughing, talking, babbling, drinking, crunching, screaming, carrying, meeting, parting, walking, running, hustling, bustling, rummaging, giving, taking, sitting—a bell—the noise dies to silence.

Herald Dance—Scene of Novel Awards

With Peggy Ballard reigning as Miss Hammond High, the Herald Dance went off with bangs. Babe Mueller took the honors for dead heads and was given a smoked herring. Lillis McDowell was given a Gracie Allen hat, Virginia Mead a string of dates, Bud Johnson a lily for being the best dancer, and Dick Whitney was given a derby for having the biggest line.

"What will it be?"
 "A Mae West Hamburger," said a winsome lass as she playfully twirled around on a revolving stool.

"Mae West?"

"Yea, nice and plump," said Gess Hoo, "and bring a glass of water so I can dunk my gum."

In a flash the Mae West hamburger arrived, a juicy pattie in a soft bun (mustard, too), fragrant with pungent onions.

She paid MINER-DUNN a minor-dun and said in the inimitable Betz fashion: "Ah, short, dark and hamsome, you fas'nate me."

"Pretty Boy" Levens finally decided to make a statement about his smooth appearance. He said, while pushing the wave into his sleek black hair, "I owe all my beauty to three sources—my mother, my father, and the INDI-ILLI BEAUTY AND BARBER SHOP. I never go any place else to have my hair set and my eyebrows plucked. They do such lovely work!" O. K., "Pretty Boy!"

Ever since that Sohl dame spilled varnish on her formal, she swears by HOPMAN'S CLEANERS. It seems that they removed the obnoxious stains admirably from Greta's dress, without removing the dress, too, which is the usual procedure. When asked if she would allow herself to be quoted on the matter, Greta smiled coyly and said, "Of course, but confidentially, don't you think you could make it a coca-cola instead"? But varnish it was, and varnish it shall be, because varnish makes elegant stains.

The man with the artistic looking hair and the football mustache (11 on each side) is none other than BODIE of BODIE'S ART STUDIO. At the moment he is saying, "Now look at the birdie," to his subject, who is little Helen Rae Elledge. Helen Rae is contentedly clutching a fuzzy little rabbit, and she would much rather look at BODIE than the old birdie, because, after all, you can see a birdie in almost any tree, but where can you see BODIE? Answer, certainly not in a tree! So "click" goes the camera and all is swell. BODIE has "Clicked" admirably all year, and the Dunes staff has voted him a gift of a large book of paper cut-out dolls. Sharp sense of humor, that Dunes staff.

Better Light Better Sight

Light from ordinary wax candles would cost more than 150 times as much per candle power as light from electric lamps. Even if it were possible to light your home with candles, the amount of light which now costs less than three dollars would cost more than $500.00. Sixty years ago, candles were the principal source of illumination for those who could afford them. Persons who wished to economize studied and read by the light thrown from the hearthfire or went to bed at nightfall. The cost of electric light is so small a part of the cost of candle light that, even if it were more desirable, only the rich could afford to illuminate with candles. In the average budget of living expenses, electric light is one of the smallest items. Yet it is one of the most useful and essential services, and one of the most appreciated of the comforts which go to differentiate our civilization from those of the past.

Mrs. Krug was at a loss—up a tree—literally stumped! Little Charlie positively demanded that his breakfast eggs be boiled just so, and if they weren't, he kicked up an awful fuss. "Yes," sighed Mrs. Brown, "I just can't keep this house clean. That coal makes so much dirt." "Your move, you wench!" kids Kermie Cresson, to the gal friend, Gladys (Minas nothing, his opponent in a hot game of checkers). Gladie, always up to the moment with her cracks, retorts, "Oh, is it? Well, hand me the phone. Whenever it's my move, I always call the JOHNSON TRANSFER COMPANY. When they move you, you stay moved. Service with a mile—every mile. Yay, Cresson!"

There is a knock at the door, which is eventually opened by Curley (Harold to you) Wolf. The tall man standing in the door says, "Remember me? The driver from WULF'S CLEANERS?" At that, of course, Curley slams the door because, after all, it's traditional to keep the wolf from the door. However, he reconsiders, and as one Wolf to another WULF, gives the driver (to clean, of course) his best gravy spotted necktie.

Remember Phil Royce, '34? Phil always remembered his various girl friends on their birthdays and such with roses from HANSEN'S FLORAL COMPANY. And now that he's away at T. M. I. and acquiring an elegant southern accent, he hasn't forgotten either the girl friends or HANSEN'S. He telegraphs his orders to HANSEN'S, who has flowers for all occasions, and they deliver them. "Three rings, sir?" "My word," mused Irving Chayken, "must be two girl friends and one for himself—or three girl friends. He must slay them."

But the obliging proprietor at ARMSTRONG'S JEWELRY STORE produced three rings from his orderly trays of sorted diamonds, birthstones and cameos and took them to his unusual customer. "When will they be ready?" queried the person. "Ready?" demanded Irving. "You may take them now—cash or installments." "No, I must have them melted—made into one." "Oh," apologized Irving—and how was he to have known Tiny Crawford?

Smoothly, slowly, Weenie Gostlin slides his Duesenberg to a stop before a gas pump at the SUPREME SERVICE STATION. Beside him on the upholstered seat sits the gal friend, Jean Sheiffle. To the attendant, Weenie says grandly, "Fill 'er up"—(for the benefit of his babe). But he nonchalantly waves his hand, two fingers upheld, out the window below the scope of Jeannie's penetrating gaze. The attendant nods understandingly and winks a wise eye.

To make that Saturday nite rite a pleasure, Alice Brady has found a marvy recipe. She says to take one bath tub from the CALUMET HEATING AND PLUMBING SUPPLY COMPANY (Alice likes purple for herself); fill it full of hot water. Then add a bar of non-skid soap, and then slowly add yourself. Mix all together, vigorously, for about one-half an hour. Results: a clean you, a smaller bar of soap, and a ring around the bath tub.

Of course, who else could such a ballyhoo-er be except "Windy" Windell; and he's campaigning for HUMPFER'S GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET. Windy says they really have swell meats, and that Bettina is really quite a tasty morsel.

George Hood, football star, ex-pie man, and now man-about-the-service-station, says that all the people that come to VAN SENUS come to see him operate. However, the VAN SENUS brothers disagree, because, after all, when better gas is dribbled into gas tanks, a VAN SENUS will be behind the pump. That handsome mauler, Johnnie Keeler, will become very vehement on one subject . . . He has been known to turn a deep purple shade with rage, and to become so angry that he goes along the hall tearing lockers from their places 5 or 6 at a time. The reason for his ire? Well, it seems that someone tried to fox him with a mat that didn't come from the Colonial. Johnnie says that, "the Colonial mats have such a distinctive bounce and such a lovely soft texture."

The 6th of April is Fluffy's birthday (Fluffy, of course, is Winnie Tuley's pet turtle). This year Winnie was at a loss for ideas for a present. She had given Fluffy practically everything available from a new aquarium equipped with zippers on the windows and handrun elevators, to a carton of turtle food. Fluffy, though, had her own ideas, which she conveyed to Winnie by writing love-letters in the sand. Winnie took the hint, and now Fluffy is sporting a glittering diamond collar from those exclusive dealers of certified diamonds, COUSIN'S.

Margie Blocker used to waste hours of time and buckets of energy writing book-length letters to Evanston. Recently, tho' she wised up to herself and went down to see DICK HOYT. Now she zips through letters that are twice as lengthy, in no time at all with her trusty typewriter. And she is everlastingly grateful, because now she can say twice as much on half as much paper in a quarter as much time as it took before. And Evanston agrees. Nice town, Evanston!
